You are Invited!

California State University, Sacramento (CSUS) cordially invites you to attend the California ADA Conference, April 6-8, 2004 at the CSUS campus in Sacramento. This three-day conference will provide a unique opportunity for ADA professionals to learn about Public Rights-of-Way Accessibility and Employment Issues. The University acknowledges the contributions of the Federal Highway Administration, California Department of Transportation, Division of the State Architect, County of Sacramento and City of Sacramento in co-sponsoring this conference.

Conference highlights include:

- General Sessions with prominent keynote speakers.
- A variety of Breakout Sessions – including Accessible Pedestrian Design and Construction, Signage and Wayfinding, Self-Evaluation and Transition Plans, Barden vs. City of Sacramento, Paratransit-Where is it Taking Us? and Handling ADA Complaints.

Why Should I Attend?

The primary goal of the conference is to educate ADA professionals including Engineers, Architects and Program Managers in Public Rights-of-Way Accessibility Issues that effect their local areas.

The Conference will:

- Increase your awareness of ADA implications to designing, implementing and evaluating effective ADA programs.
- Assist you to identify gaps in your local transition plans and methods to address ADA deficiencies.
- Provide an opportunity to network with a variety of agencies and organizations.
- Provide well designed workshop experiences and tools to help you address ADA issues in your program.
- Enable you to collaborate with ADA professionals at the federal, state and local levels.
